

Student Trainee (m/f/x) Pre-Design

Berlin - Germany

Pre-design is a visual communication tool that assists in structuring the dialogue between the client and the architect and with which the context of the commission is worked out. Forms and spaces are not simply objectives, but are evolved out of the processes, specifications and cultural contexts of each individual project.

We are currently looking for a pre-design student trainee (m/f/d) for our Berlin office, to begin immediately.

You can expect the following

- Assistance in the preparation of innovative spatial concepts, development studies and master plans
- Compilation, visualisation and structuring of client input
- Assistance in the development of strategies and concepts
- Analysis of the communication networks and preparation of potential-assessment studies for buildings
- Supporting design processes and the conceptualisation of presentation contents

You bring along

- Registered student (m/f/d) in architecture, design, psychology or a related discipline
- Experience in an architectural office, consulting company or in project management preferable
- Superior communication skills and ability to formulate content
- Self-sufficient, analytical and strategically focused work approach
- Excellent command of German and English

We offer

- Great project variety, a wide range of project typologies and a large design scope
- Active participation in our outstanding and challenging projects
- Attractive salary
- Office in the heart of Berlin with excellent public transport connections
- International and interdisciplinary working environment
